

Support for Concordia Seminary's International Graduate School Students, $2957.50

This proposal will help International Seminary students who do not have resources to afford advanced theological preparation for ministry, which their countries do not offer. When they earn their advanced-level degrees they will return to their home countries to assume important roles in sharing the Gospel message throughout many nations. The majority of these students will become professors at their countries' seminaries and serve as leaders in growing their church bodies. The global students who become seminary professors overseas will lead in raising up the next generation of pastors who will reach out to the unchurched and share the Gospel throughout foreign lands.
